“ I always visited Mandi at work because she was so cheerful and I was drawn to that. When I found out she had died, I had brought her the title of a book about the nature of immortality based on one of our many conversations. I drew the butterfly with a simple goodbye message I was so sad. This is the strangest thing, but I think I found the third butterfly...

“ My sweet church buddy, I will miss your big warm hugs at the door when you walk through the door. I will miss sitting together and hearing you sing and praise with all your heart. I will miss how you listened so intently to the word and took notes in your little notebook. I loved our after service conversations about the service. I love all the great advice that you gave my daughter Grace. I'm so thankful for the friendship that you and my son Andrew shared. I love you my sweet friend, I will miss you. Your kindness and generosity, your infectious smile will be missed by this world and by me.

“ I remember Mandi scraping up change to buy a birthday gift for a family member. She lived with such turmoil and pain but so often she went above and beyond to make people feel loved, Even when she had nothing. I learned so much from her.
