“ Whoever handled the death of Donny should be ashamed of themselves. You do realize my mother loved Donny and took care of him during his final days. AND The care was constant! Not anyone of you people came around nor was there for him during his final days! My mother even paid his bills!!! Then kick my mother out on the streets the evening of his death after she called you. You're sick people!!! Not even allowing her to gather her belongings. That includes my baby pictures and even this photo that is on his obituary that i took! It was her that found him dead and contacted you out of respect for his family.

Then lastnight we discover this obituary and he had a funeral keeping it hush hush. And you list my mother as just a friend. When they were living together and a couple for over 10 years. You couldn't even spell her name right! You didn't even know that Don was a widower himself. You people are now hopefully reaping what you sow. Getting older now, it's still not too late to apologize for the hurt you've caused my mom. In which obviously after all these years, she's still grieving his loss. I pity all you that have wronged my mother and your personal feelings towards her had nothing to do with Donny. I can assure you, he would despise you for what you did! Let's hope I never run into you in public because I will shame you and cause you embarrassment to the fullest extent. That is a promise! Yours truly, Lou Bennetti
