“ Although I only knew Uncle Joey for a short time I feel that we got really close. I already have so many stories about him that make me laugh but my favorite is still probably when we first got to know each other.

I went up to camp and Joey invited me to hunt in the stand with him. He was whispering about a big buck that came up in the morning. Sitting in the stand exchanging quiet words over a freshly fallen snow, he asks “you think we have to be quiet?” And before I could say anything he answered his own question loudly with, “I think it’s all bullshit!” Then he cracked his beer, lit a cigarette and started eating KitKats; crumbling up the wrappers. I laughed so hard and just thought about how I was glad I was in the stand with Joey but how our hunting prospects were over.

Rest easy Joey. You will truly be missed and always remembered with a smile.

Karl nice read. For me it was the greatest pleasure having Joe as a first cousin. Joe, and I shared a lot of great stories(too long to post), and the common denominator in the end was a laugh and a smile. So Karl, it may have only been a short time that you knew him, you did know him well. RIP Joe, I know you are smiling.
